

History preserved: How Wilmington's oldest buildings are being honored

Written by Dail, Miss Allayna Nichole
Monday, February 08, 2021 12:00 AM

Published February 6, 2021, at 6:01 am, by Matt Born & Hunter Ingram for Wilmington StarNews.

History preserved: How Wilmington's oldest buildings are being honored

The Burgwin-Wright House is the first in Wilmington to have the new sapphire Historic Wilmington Foundation plaque, which designates it as a structure that is 200 years or older. A second sapphire plaque at the home has been installed to denote it as the site of the cities first colonial jail.

View the Story
More News